PREFACE

THE following work represents a serious attempt to give a musical setting to the Psalms in accordance with the sense and structure of the words as revealed by the late Bishop Westcott in his most valuable "Paragraph Psalter."

The idea of undertaking it was first suggested to the writer by the late Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick, Vicar of All Saints', Scarborough, and for his church many of the settings were written, being commenced as far back as 1893, following upon some earlier work in the same direction by the late Dr. John Naylor. On the writer's accepting the office of Director of the Music at the restored Collegiate Church of S. Saviour in 1897, an unique opportunity presented itself, when starting an entirely new organisation, for aiming at a complete and faithful rendering of the Psalms, unshackled by antiquated and meaningless traditions. Encouraged and strengthened by the kind support and sympathy of the Precentor, Ven. Archdeacon Taylor, he seized the opportunity and embarked upon the course which has led to the issue of the present volume.

The original intention was to adapt existing chants to the words in a more logical and consistent manner than heretofore, but as time went on the writer came to feel more and more that, to carry out Bishop Westcott's principles to their logical conclusion, it was necessary to make a fresh beginning, since the adaptation could not have been effected without considerably tampering with other composers' writings, a proceeding unjustifiable, unsatisfactory, and inexpedient; and so he was gradually drawn into writing new music for the whole.

In the first instance, however, no thought of ever publishing the work was entertained; it was merely meant for use at S. Saviour's. The present step of issuing the book for the public has been reluctantly taken only in response to urgent and persistent requests from many who have heard the Psalms sung at that Collegiate Church.

In writing the music the aim has been to give a plain and obvious expression to the words. In some cases both form and style have been suggested by ancient plainsong. Within the narrow limits of a chant it would seem well-nigh impossible, in face of the vast field already covered by existing compositions, to write anything new and original. Certain simple progressions and melodic phrases must of necessity be regarded as common property in this connexion. No attempt has been made to avoid these musical germs, but only to wed them to the words they appear best calculated to express.

For an explanation of the principles upon which this has been done, the reader is referred to "The Psalms: their Structure and Musical Rendering,"¹ in which the subject is treated fully in all its bearings.

The writer desires to tender cordial thanks to the executors of the late Bishop Westcott and to the Cambridge Press Syndicates for kind permission to print the analytical notes from the "Paragraph Psalter," and also to Mr. Harvey Grace, of S. Alphage's, Southwark, for very valuable help in revising proof-sheets.

DIRECTIONS FOR THE USE OF THE PSALTER

VOCAL

SUCCESS in the rendering of the Psalms depends to a great extent upon a correct method of chanting.

The object in chanting should be to give to the sung words as nearly as possible the same relative weight and duration as when spoken.

It is evident to the thoughtful student that the meaning of our language depends largely upon the manner in which it is presented to the ear. Words which are emphasised and prolonged secure a larger share in the mental impression produced by any given sentence than those that are pronounced lightly.

Every sentence has, in addition to the words of which it is formed, its own natural manner of rendering, by means of which its sense is conveyed.

The Recitation—that part of the sentence which is sung to the first semibreve of the chant.

No regard should be paid to the length of the musical note given. A semibreve is used conventionally, but it should be looked upon as merely indicating the pitch not the time of the sung note. When only one syllable is set to it, it should be treated as a minim in nearly every case; and as an aid to the singer the mark (˘) has been placed over such syllables to remind him that there should be no delay upon them.

The number of syllables found in the recitation varies from a single syllable to as many as thirty-six.

E.g. Psalm cxix. 89—

“O | Lord thy | word :”

Psalm lxviii. 30—

“When the company of the spear-men, and multitude of the mighty, are scattered abroad among the beasts of the people, so that they humbly bring | pieces of | silver :”

No hurrying should in any case ever be apparent; and it may roughly be said that this latter example should take thirty-six times as long to render as the former.

A good deal is heard about “accent” in chanting, but insufficient attention is given to the subject of “quantity”—that is, the relative length of time occupied by the various syllables. This is of vital importance in monotonous recitation, and should be most carefully considered. If certain syllables upon which the sense depends are fearlessly prolonged, a wonderfully convincing effect can be produced.

It was the author’s original intention to employ some marks in the text to indicate the words that should be lengthened, but he decided to abandon this for two reasons—first, the great difficulty, if not impossibility, of indicating in print exactly what is required of the singer, since it is not a matter of merely dividing into long and short, but into many intermediate stages; and, secondly, the likelihood that if this had been attempted the result would in most cases have fallen short of the desired effect, and drifted into a mere hard mechanical rendering.

He has chosen the alternative course of leaving the text free from any pointing marks beyond the necessary bars, in the belief that the only way to secure intelligent and truthful rendering is for the teacher first carefully to study the subject himself, and then persuade the singers to apply their understanding to it under his guidance.

The simple general principle to remember is that the word or words upon which the sense chiefly depends should be prolonged ; others that are merely connecting links should be shortened.

Whenever a sentence begins with "O" pronounce this with a full tone, and dwell slightly upon it. "Lo," "Behold," "Look," should always be prolonged. "Yea," which frequently commences the answer of the parallel, should be treated in the same way, as indicating the agreement of both sections of the singers. All these words are often neglected.

Unnecessary commas have been removed. Those that remain should be observed, not by taking breath, but by dwelling upon the words which they follow.
E.g.—

"Up Lord, disappoint him and cast him down."

The asterisk (*) indicates the place where breath should be taken.

The Inflection—

(a) Middle words.

(b) Endings.

(a) The music occurring between any two bars of the chant should be freely adapted to the corresponding words.

Two syllables corresponding with two notes offer little difficulty, but here there should be careful distinction between long and short. Compare—

"The ungodly cometh | on so | fast,"

and

"I would make haste | to es- | cape."

"On so" should take twice as long to render as "to es-."

When three syllables occurring between two bars make it necessary to sing two to one note, that note should be greatly prolonged—in many cases doubled. E.g.—

“And shall not suffer the | righteous · to | fall for-|ever.”

Here “righteous” should be sung slowly to the first note of the bar, while “to” will be taken lightly to the second.

The same principles apply when four syllables occur between two bars.

(b) Endings of more than one syllable should be carefully rendered, taken quietly, and at no quicker rate than preceding words. E.g.—

“For strangers are risen | up a-|  gainst me.”

“Behold God | is my |   helper.”

“Unto mine |    enemies.”

All this is much easier to put into practice than might at first sight appear, since it follows the dictates of common sense, and, once acquired, will never be forgotten.

A word should be said as to the rendering of dotted notes and triplets.

When for a semibreve or two minims are substituted a dotted minim and a crotchet ( · ), the manner of rendering should be carefully noted. If one syllable of the words is set to the two notes there is no difficulty. If two, one syllable should be taken to each note. But when there are three the following rule should be observed. Where the three are equal in length, or if the first is longer than the others, the musical notes will be divided thus— $\text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$; but if the third of the three syllables is long, this will be the arrangement— $\text{P} \text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$. E.g. in the Gloria Patri $\text{P} \cdot \text{P}$ will become—

world with - out

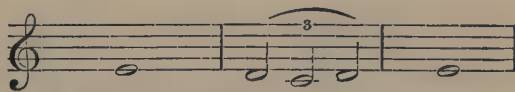

When a triplet occurs, the rendering will be as follows:—

For two syllables, the first syllable will be sung to two notes, the second to one. E.g.—

therefore let us keep the feast

For three syllables, each syllable will coincide with a separate note. E.g.—

nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness

The Antiphonal Arrangement, whole verse or half verse, is designed to coincide with the structure of the poetry. In the latter the opposite side should enter immediately the first side has finished the clause assigned to it.

Interludes.—It will be noticed that in most cases where an interlude is used the concluding chord is placed in brackets. This indicates that the voices are to enter with, not after, that chord. E.g. Psalm xvi.—

Voices.

Organ.

I will thank the Lord, &c.

Monotones.—These should be taken deliberately, as in good reading (the antiphonal arrangement being continued unless otherwise marked), and should commence immediately, upon the given note, the organ playing a free accompaniment, as indicated.

INSTRUMENTAL

In commencing any Psalm the tiresome and unnecessary practice of “playing over” should be avoided, but a suitable prelude may often be extemporised, and in cases where an interlude occurs, may be taken from that. In other cases it should be a phrase in keeping with the character of the chant, should be very short, and may indeed be reduced to one single chord, played in such a position as to allow the chant to follow in an artistic manner.

At the conclusion of any Psalm a short postlude is sometimes effective, though seldom absolutely necessary. The taste of the organist will decide where to introduce it, and, like the prelude, it should be in keeping with the interlude, where one occurs, and with the chant.

Interludes.—The interludes should be commenced directly the voices cease, and in the cases where the concluding chord is in brackets, that chord will correspond with the entry of the voices, which, however, very frequently give a different position of the chord.

Monotones.—The greatest skill is required to effectively accompany the monotones. When well done they become one of the principal features of the music. It has seemed neither possible nor desirable to write out in full all that may be played, but in every case a few phrases are given, from which it is intended that the organist shall develop his own extemporaneous accompaniment—of such a character as to illustrate as far as possible the meaning of the words.

Unison passages may be accompanied by varied harmonies, though the aim should be to make these effective through simple means, avoiding startling and outlandish progressions. In some cases alternative harmonies are given.

GENERAL

Pace.—The directions over each chant (e.g. “slow,” “joyful,” “plaintive”) are intended to give a hint as to the general character of the music. It should be noted that a uniform mechanical sameness of pace should be avoided. The pace and general manner of rendering should be suggested by the sense of the words and the character of the music.

The habit of invariably introducing a marked ral-lentando at the conclusion of every “Gloria” is to be deprecated, though a very slight slackening of the pace is advisable just at the final cadence. A rallentando may, however, be effectively introduced at the concluding verse of many Psalms, especially when this sums up or points the moral of what has gone before. E.g. Psalm xv. 7—

“Whoso doeth these things shall never fall;”

or Psalm lxxxiv. 13—

“O Lord God of Hosts, blessed is the man that putteth his trust in thee.”

On the other hand, when the conclusion of the Psalm does not involve any striking finality of thought, as, for instance, in case of the various sections of Psalm cxix., a rallentando is inappropriate.

It is intended that words ending with “ed” shall be sung as pronounced in ordinary speech.

thou Lord of thy goodness hast | māde my | hill so | strong.

Deliverance.

mf 12 Thou hast turned my heaviness | into | joy : thou hast put off my sackcloth, * and | girded | me with | gladness.

PSALM XXXI. In te, Domine, speravi.Sustained, but not slow.

Prayer in trust.

Dec. p IN thee O Lord have I | put my | trust : (Can.) let me never be put to confusion, * deliver me | in thy | righteous- | ness.
2 Bow down thine | ear to | me : make | haste · to de- | liver | me.

mf 3 And be thou my strong rock and | house · of de-|fence :
thāt | thou mayest | save — | me.

4 For thou art my strong rock | and my | castle : be thou
also my guide, * and lead me | for thy | Name's — | sake.

5 Draw me out of the net that they have laid | privi · ly | for me : fōr | thou — | art my | strength.

pp 6 Into thy hands I com-|mend my | spirit : for thou hast redeemed me, * O | Lord thou | God of | truth.

p 7 I have hated them that hold of super-|stitious | vanities :
and my trust hath | been — | in the | Lord.

mf 8 I will be glad and rejoice | in thy | mercy : for thou hast considered my trouble, * and hast known my soul | in ad-|versi-| ties.

9 Thou hast not shut me up into the | hand · of the | enemy :
but hast set my feet | in a | large — | room.

Pleading.

Picture of distress.

pp 10 Have mercy upon me O Lord, * fōr | I am · in | trouble :
and mine eye is consumed for very heaviness ; * yea my | soul — |
and my | body.

11 For my life is waxen | old with | heaviness : and my |
years — | with — | mourning.

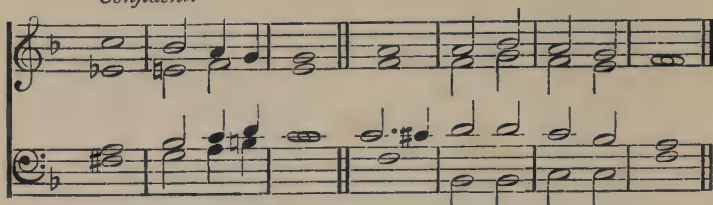

12 My strength faileth me, * because of | mine in-|iquity :
and my | bones — | are con-|sumed.

13 I became a reproof among all mine enemies, * but especially a-|mong my | neighbours : and they of mine acquaintance were afraid of me ; * and they that did see me without con-|veyed them-|selves — | from me.

14 I am clean forgotten, * as a dead man | out of | mind : I am become | like a | broken | vessel.

p 15 For I have heard the blasphemy | of the | multitude : and fear is on every side, * while they conspire together against me, *
and take their counsel to | take a-|way my | life.

(Chant changes for v. 16.)

Confident.

Confession and prayer.

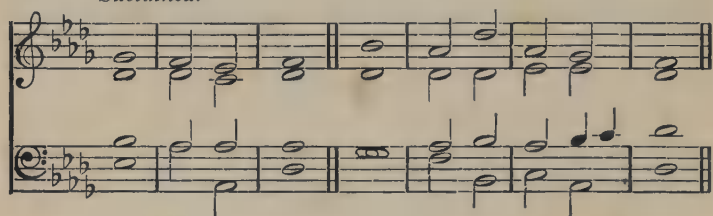

mf 16 But my hope hath been in | thee O | Lord : I have said, * |
"Thou — | art my | God."

p 17 My time is in thy hand, * deliver me from the hand | of mine | enemies : and from | them that | perse · cute | me.

mf 18 Shew thy servant the light | of thy | countenance : and save me | for thy | mercy's | sake.

p 19 Let me not be confounded O Lord, * for I have | called up- | on thee : let the ungodly be put to confusion, * and be put pp to | silence | in the | grave.

p 20 Let the lying lips be | put to | silence : which cruelly disdainfully and spitefully | speak a- | gainst the | righteous.

Sustained.

Thanksgiving.

mp 21 O how plentiful is thy goodness, * which thou hast laid up for | them that | fear thee : and that thou hast prepared for them that put their trust in thee, * even be- | fore the | sons of | men !

p 22 Thou shalt hide them privily by thine own presence * from the pro- | voking- of | all men : thou shalt keep them secretly in thy tabernacle * | from the | strife of | tongues.

mf 23 Thanks be | to the | Lord : for he hath shewed me marvellous great kindness | in a | strong — | city.

p 24 And when I made | haste, * I | said : "I am cast out of the | sight — | of thine | eyes."

25 Nevertheless thou heardest the | voice of · my | prayer :
when I | cried — | unto | thee.

Quietly, not slow.

The blessedness and condition of forgiveness.

A. Dec. p BLESSED is he whose unrighteousness | is for-| given : (Can.)

3 For while I | held my | tongue : my bones consumed away |
through my | daily · com-| plaining.

4 For thy hand is heavy upon me | day and | night : and my moisture is | like the | drought in | summer.

5 I will acknowledge my sin | unto | thee : and mine un-

6 I said, * I will confess my sins | unto · the | Lord : and so thou forgavest the | wickedness | of my | sin.

His truth and righteousness.

A. Dec. 4 For the word of the | Lord is | true : (Can.) and | all his |

His creative power.

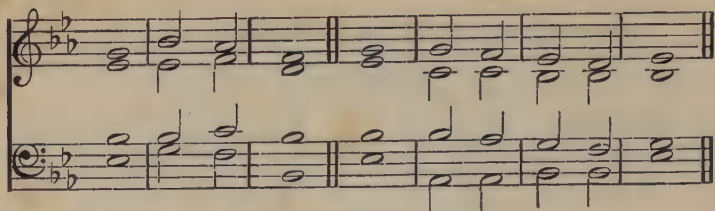

U.A. f 6 By the word of the Lord were the | heavens | made : and all the hosts of them * by the | breath — | of his | mouth.

7 He gathereth the waters of the sea together,* as it were up-|
on an | heap : and layeth up the deep as | in a | treasure-| house.

8 Let all the earth | fear the | Lord : stand in awe of him,*
all ye that | dwell — | in the | world.

9 For he spake,* and | it was | done : he commanded,* | and

His government of men.

H.A. mf 10 The Lord bringeth the counsel of the | heathen · to | nought :
and maketh the devices of the people to be of none effect, * and casteth | out the | counsels · of | princes.

11 The counsel of the Lord shall en-|dure for | ever : and the thoughts of his heart * from gener-|ation · to | gener-|ation.

12 Blessed are the people whose God is the | Lord Je-|hovah :
and blessed are the folk that he hath chosen to him to | be — |
his in-|heritance.

p 13 The Lord looked down from heaven, * and beheld all the | children · of | men : from the habitation of his dwelling * he considereth all them that | dwell — | on the | earth.

14 He fashioneth all the | hearts of | them : and under-|
standeth | all their | works.

15 There is no king that can be saved by the multitude | of an | host : neither is any mighty man de-|livered · by | much — | strength.

16 A horse is counted but a vain thing to | save a | man :
neither shall he deliver any man | by his | great — | strength.

17 Behold the eye of the Lord is upon | them that | fear him : and upon them that put their | trust — | in his | mercy ;

18 To deliver their | soul from | death : and to feed them | in the | time of | dearth.

Confidence in Him.

mf 19 Our soul hath patiently tarried | for the | Lord : for he is our | help — | and our | shield.

20 For our heart shall re-|joice in | him : because we have hoped | in his | holy | Name.

21 Let thy merciful kindness O Lord | be up · on | us : like as we do | put our | trust in | thee.

PSALM XXXV. Judica, Domine.

Plaintive and sustained.

The Psalmist pleads against his enemies.

Dec. mf PLEAD thou my cause O Lord, * with them that | strive
with | me : (Can.) and fight thou against them that | fight
a-|gainst — | me.

2 Lay hand upon the | shield and | buckler : and | stand — |

3 Bring forth the spear, * and stop the way against them that |
perse · cute | me : say unto my soul, * | I am | thy sal-|vation.

4 Let them be confounded and put to shame, * that seek |
after · my | soul : let them be turned back and brought to confusion, * that im-|agine | mischief | for me.

5 Let them be as the dust be-|fore the | wind : and the angel of the | Lord — | scattering | them.

p 6 Let their way be | dark and | slippery : and let the angel of the | Lord — | perse · cute | them.

7 For they have privily laid their net * to destroy me with-|out
a | cause : yea, * even without a cause have they made a |
pit — | for my | soul.

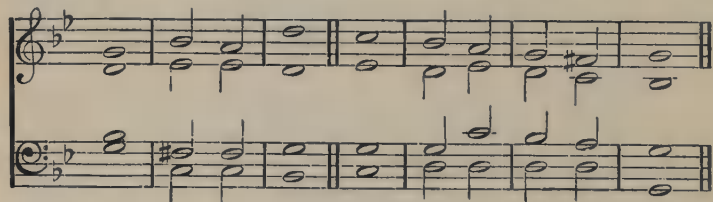

cres. 8 Let a sudden destruction come upon him unawares, * and (Chant changes for v. 9.)

Confident.

F. mf 9 And my soul be joyful | in the | Lord : it shall re-|joice in | his sal-|vation.

10 All my bones shall say, " Lord who is like unto thee,* who deliverest the poor from him that is too | strong for | him : yea,* the poor and him that is in misery,* frõm | him that | spoileth | him?"

Their cruel ingratitude.

A. p 11 False witnesses did | rise — | up : they laid to my charge | things — | that I | knew not.

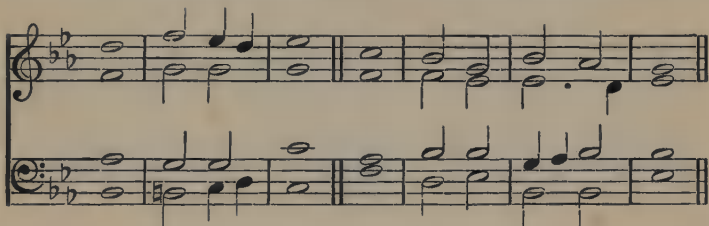

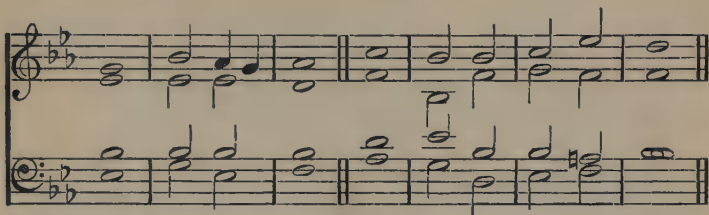

12 They rewarded me | evil·for | good : to the great dis-|comfort | of my | soul.

13 Nevertheless,* when they were sick I put on sackcloth,* and humbled my | soul with | fasting : and my prayer shall turn | into-mine | own — | bosom.

14 I behaved myself as though it had been my friend | or my | brother : I went heavily,* as one that | mourneth | for his | mother.

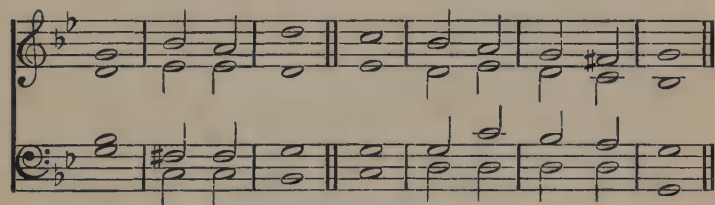

15 But in mine adversity they rejoiced,* and gathered themselves to-gether : yea,* the very abjects came together against me unawares,* making | mouths at | me, and | ceased not.

16 With the flatterers were | busy | mockers : who gnashed up-|on me | with their | teeth.

hate·me with-|out a | cause.

20 And why? * their communing is | not for | peace : but they imagine deceitful words * against them that are | quiet — |
in the | land.

21 They gaped upon me with their | mouths and | said : “Fie on thee, * fie on thee, * we | saw it | with our | eyes.”

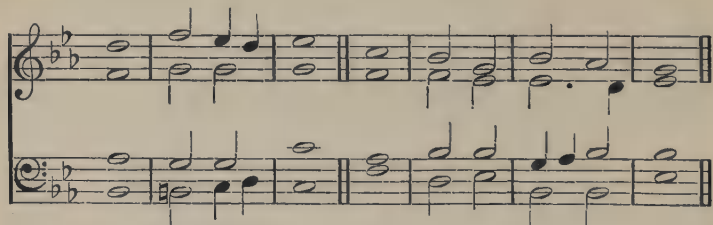

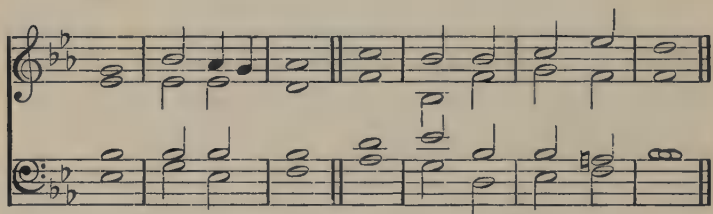

22 This thou hast | seen O | Lord : hold not thy tongue then, * go not | far from | me O | Lord.

23 Awake, * and stand up to | judge my | quarrel : avenge thou my cause, * my | God — | and my | Lord.

24 Judge me O Lord my God, * according | to thy | righteousness : and let them not | triumph | over | me.

25 Let them not say in their hearts, * “There, there, | so · would we | have it” : neither let them say, * | “We · have de- | voured — | him.”

The recklessness of the wicked.

Monotone.

A. Dec. pp

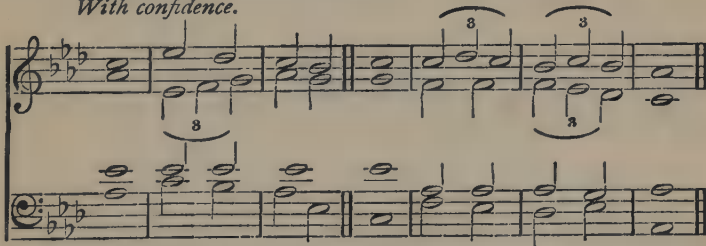

MY heart sheweth me the wickedness of the ungodly : (Can.) that there is no fear of God before his eyes.

2 For he flattereth himself in his own sight : until his abominable sin be found out.

3 The words of his mouth are unrighteous and full of deceit : he hath left off to behave himself wisely and to do good.

4 He imagineth mischief upon his bed, * and hath set himself in no good way : neither doth he abhor any thing that is evil.

PSALM XXXVII. Noli æmulari.Quietly and lightly.

The just retribution of God.

A. Dec. p FRET not thyself because of | the un-|godly : (Can.) neither be thou envious a-|gainst the | evil | doers.
pp 2 For they shall soon be cut down | like the | grass : and be withered even | as the | green — | herb.

Patience has its reward.

p 3 Put thou thy trust in the Lord, * and be | doing | good :
 dwell in the land, * and verily | thou — | shalt be | fed.

4 Delight thou | in the | Lord : and he shall | give · thee thy |
 heart's de-|sire.

5 Commit thy way unto the Lord, * and put thy | trust in |
 him : and | he shall | bring it · to | pass.

6 He shall make thy righteousness as | clear · as the | light :
 and thy just | dealing | as the | noon-day.

7 Hold thee still in the Lord, * and abide patiently up-|on — | him : but grieve not thyself at him whose way doth prosper, *
 against the man that doeth | after | evil | counsels.

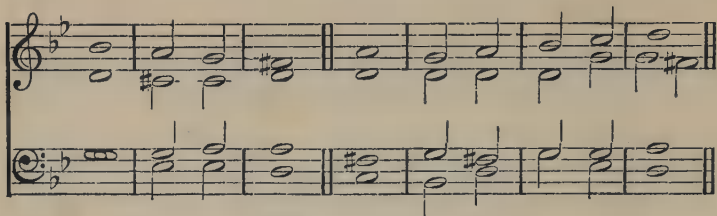

8 Leave off from wrath, * and let | go dis-|pleasure : fret not thyself, * else shalt thou be | moved to | do — | evil.

9 Wicked doers shall be | rooted | out : and they that patiently abide the Lord, * | those · shall in-|herit · the | land.

pp 10 Yet a little while, * and the ungodly shall be | clean — |
 gone : thou shalt look after his place, * and | he shall | be a-|way.

11 But the meek-spirited shall pos-|sess the | earth : and shall be refreshed in the | multi-|tude of | peace.

(Chant changes at v. 12.)

The strength of the wicked is weakness.

mf 12 The ungodly seeketh counsel a-|gainst the | just : and
gnasheth up-|on him | with his | teeth.

13 The Lord shall | laugh · him to | scorn : for he hath seen |
that his | day is | coming.

14 The ungodly have drawn out the sword,* and have | bent their | bow : to cast down the poor and needy,* and to slay such as are of a | right — | conver-|sation.

15 Their sword shall go through their | own — | heart : and
thei-|r bow — | shall be | broken.

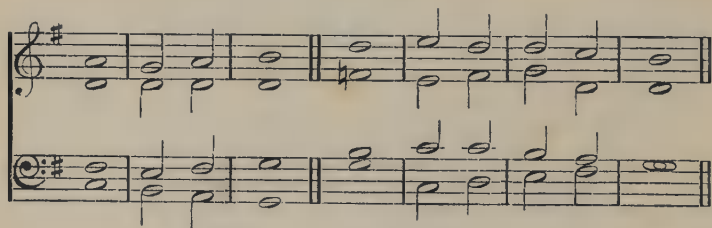

16 A small thing that the | righteous | hath : is better than great | riches | of · the un-|godly.

17 For the arms of the ungodly | shall be | broken : and the |
Lord up-|holdeth · the | righteous.

18 The Lord knoweth the | days · of the | godly : and their inheritance | shall en-|dure for | ever.

19 They shall not be confounded in the | perilous | time : and in the days of dearth | they shall | have e-|nough.

20 As for the ungodly they shall perish ; * and the enemies of the Lord shall consume as the | fat of | lambs : yea, * even as the smoke shall | they con-|sume a-|way.

The sure reward of the righteous.

p 21 The ungodly borroweth,* and payeth | not a-|gain : but
the righteous is | merci-|ful and | liberal.

22 Such as are blessed of God shall pos-|sess the | land : and they that are cursed of him | shall be | rooted | out.

23 The Lord ordereth a | good man's | going : and maketh
his way ac-|cepta-|ble | to him-|self.

24 Though he fall,* he shall not be | cast a-|way : for the Lord up-|holdeth · him | with his | hand.

25 I have been young and | now am | old : and yet saw I never the righteous forsaken, * nor his | seed — | begging · their | bread.

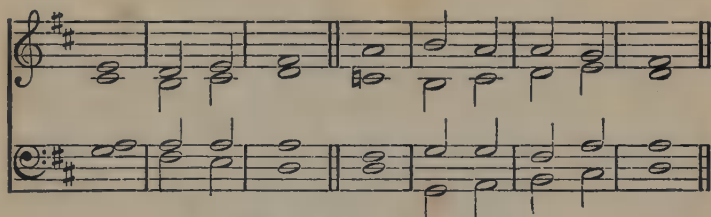

26 The righteous is ever merci-ful and | lendeth : and his | seed — | is — | blessed.

27 Flee from evil, * and do the | thing · that is | good : and | dwell for | ever-| more.

28 For the Lord loveth the | thing · that is | right : he forsaketh not his that be godly, * büt | they · are pre-|served for | ever.

29 The unrighteous | shall be | punished : as for the seed of the ungodly, * | it · shall be | rooted | out.

30 The righteous shall in-|herit · the | land : and | dwell there-| in for | ever.

Counsels of wisdom for life.

p 31 The mouth of the righteous is exer-|cised in | wisdom : and his tongue | will be | talking · of | judgement.

32 The law of his God is | in his | heart : and his | goings | shall not | slide.

33 The ungodly | seeth the | righteous : and | seeketh · oc-|casion · to | slay him.

34 The Lord will not leave him | in his | hand : nor con-|demn him | when · he is | judged.

mf 35 Hope thou in the Lord and keep his way, * and he shall promote thee that thou shalt pos-|sess the | land : when the ungodly shall | perish | thou shalt | see it.

f 36 I myself have seen the ungodly in | great — | power : and flourishing | like a | green — | bay-tree.

pp 37 I went by, * and lo, * | he was | gone : I sought him, * but his place could | no — | where be | found.

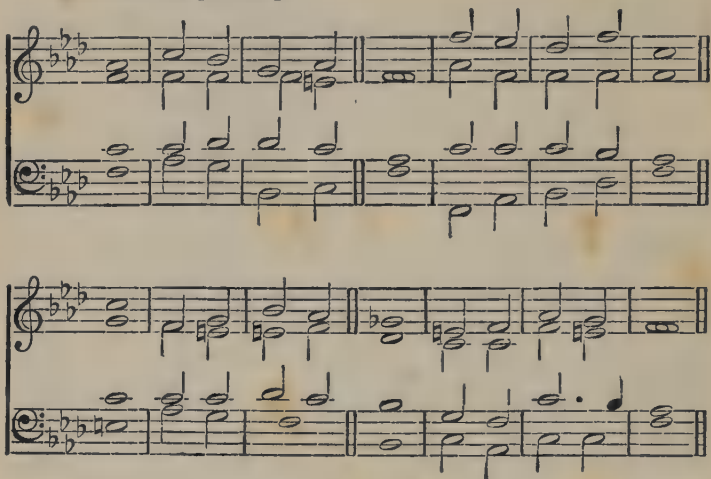

p 38 Keep innocence, * and take heed unto the | thing · that is | right : for that shall bring a man | peace — | at the | last.

39 As for the transgressors, * they shall | perish · to-|gether : and the end of the ungodly is, * they shall be rooted | out — | at the | last.

mf 40 But the salvation of the righteous cometh | of the | Lord : who is also their strength | in the | time of | trouble.

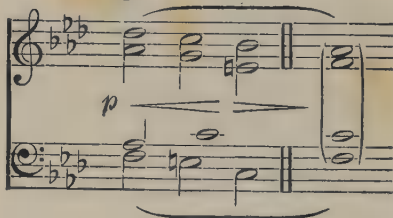

41 And the Lord shall stand by | them and | save them : he shall deliver them from the ungodly and shall save them, * because they | put their | trust in | him.

6 O Lord my God, * great are the wondrous works which thou hast done, * like as be also thy thoughts which | are to | us-ward :
and yet there is no man that ordereth | them — | unto | thee.

7 If I should declare them and | speak of | them : they should pp 2 Nevertheless my feet were | almost | gone : mÿ | tread-

The mystery of prosperous wickedness.

A. Dec. p 3 And why? * I was | grieved · at the | wicked : (Can.) I do also see the un-|godly · in | such pros-|perity.

4 For they are in no | peril · of | death : but are | lusty |
and — | strong.

5 They come in no misfortune like | other | folk : neither are they | plagued like | other | men.

6 And this is the cause that they are so | holden · with | pride :
ãnd | over-|whelmed with | cruelty.

7 Their eyes | swell with | fatness : and they do | even | what they | lust.

8 They corrupt other, * and speak of | wicked | blasphemy :
their talking is a-|gainst the | most — | High.

9 For they stretch forth their mouth | unto · the | heaven : and their tongue | goeth | through the | world.

10 Therefore fall the people | unto | them : and thereout
suck | they no | small ad-|vantage.

11 "Tush" (say they), "how should | God per-|ceive it : is there knowledge | in the | most — | High?"

12 Lo these are the ungodly, * these prosper in the world, * and these have riches | in pos-|session : and I said, * "Then have I cleansed my heart in vain, * ãnd | washed mine | hands
in | innocency."

13 All the day long have | I been | punished : ãnd | chas-
tened | every | morning.

14 Yea and I had almost said | even · as | they : but lo. * then
I should have condemned the gener-|ation | of thy | children.

The solution.

Men. p 15 Then thought I to under-stand — | this : but it | was too |
hard for | me,

16 Until I went into the sanctuary | of — | God : then understood I the | end of | these — | men ;

17 Namely, * how thou dost set them in | slippery | places :
and castest them down, * | and de-|stroyest | them.

pp 18 Oh, how suddenly do | they con-|sume : perish, and |
come · to a | fearful | end !

19 Yea even like as a dream | when · one a-|waketh : so shalt thou make their image to | vanish | out · of the | city.

p 20 Thus my | heart was | grieved : and it went | even |
through my | reins.

21 So foolish was | I and | ignorant : even as it | were a | beast be-|fore thee.

The sure trust of the righteous.

A. mf 22 Nevertheless, * I am | alway · by | thee : for thou hast
holden me | by my | right — | hand.

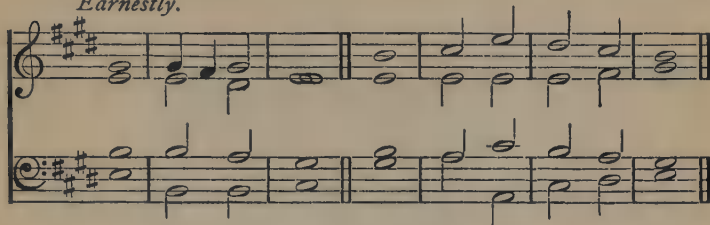

23 Thou shalt guide me | with thy | counsel : and after that re-|ceive — | me with | glory.

24 Whom have I in | heaven but | thee : and there is none
upon earth * that I desire in com-|pari-|son of | thee.

25 My flesh and my | heart — | faileth : but God is the strength of my heart, * | and my | portion · for | ever.

26 For lo, * they that for-|sake · thee shall | perish : thou hast destroyed all them that commit | forni-|cation · a-|gainst thee.

27 But it is good for me to hold me fast by God, * to put my trust in the | Lord — | God : and to speak of all thy works in the | gates · of the | daughter · of | Sion.

f 13 Marvellous things did he in the sight of our forefathers in the land of Egypt : even in the field of Zoan.

14 He divided the sea and let them go through : he made the waters to stand on an heap.

15 In the day-time also he led them with a cloud : and all the night through with a light of fire.

16 He clave the hard rocks in the wilderness : and gave them drink thereof, as it had been out of the great depth.

17 He brought waters out of the stony rock : so that it gushed out like the rivers.

f 22 When the Lord heard this he was wroth : so the fire was kindled in Jacob, * and there came up heavy displeasure against Israel.

23 Because they believed not in God : and put not their trust in his help.

24 So he commanded the clouds above : and opened the doors of heaven.

mf 25 He rained down manna also upon them for to eat : and gave them food from heaven.

26 So man did eat angels' food : for he sent them meat enough.

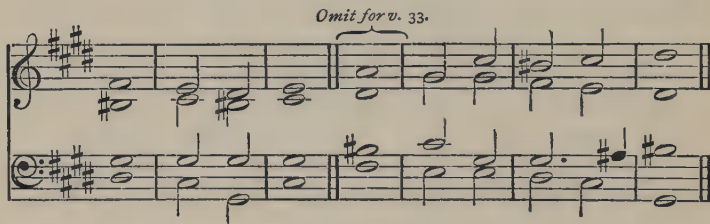

f 27 He caused the east-wind to blow under heaven : and through his power he brought in the south-west wind.

p 28 He rained flesh upon them as thick as dust : and feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea.

29 He let it fall among their tents : even round about their habitation.

30 So they did eat and were well filled ; for he gave them their own desire : they were not disappointed of their lust.

f 31 But while the meat was yet in their mouths, * the heavy wrath of God came upon them, * and slew the wealthiest of them : yea and smote down the chosen men that were in Israel.

48 He destroyed their vines with hail-stones : and their mulberry-trees with the frost.

49 He smote their cattle also with hail-stones : and their flocks with hot thunder-bolts.

50 He cast upon them the furiousness of his wrath, * anger, displeasure and trouble : and sent evil angels among them.

51 He made a way to his indignation, * and spared not their soul from death : but gave their life over to the pestilence ;

13 Let the wickedness of his fathers be had in remembrance in the sight of the Lord : and let not the sin of his mother be done away.

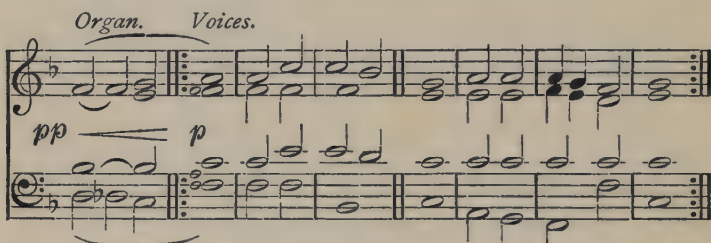

14 Let them alway be before the Lord : that he may root out the memorial of them from off the earth ;
